Dorm staff and campus events encourage community connection

BY MICHELLE RATINGER
Alumni Contributor

Dorm life is an experience that is hard to replicate anywhere but on campus. Calvin offers a unique experience of communal living, learning to live with people you have never met and finding the courage to fit into a community that is larger than the typical family. The dorm is where you really grow and learn about relationships and people, and the interactions there will shape how you change during your time in college.

In the first week or two of school, there will be an influx of new faces and a confusing mix of names that all hope to match to faces. There are a few people, however, that are especially kind. Resident Assistants on your floor and throughout the building are some of the most essential people, because they are the number one source information and support for you, particularly in the first few weeks of school. The RAs are more than just rule-keepers — they are fantastic and enthusiastic people who want to feel connected to you and the other residents of the hall, so remember these important people is good for you as well as for them.

One very important resource is the Activity Coordinator who will be planning events for the floor to help you meet and bond with the other residents on your floor and in your building. Activity Coordinators will organize floor outings, dates with other floors, and, depending on which dorm you reside in and what they have chosen for programming this year, weekly evening activities. Each dorm will have a dorm re-organized by the Activity Coordinator, and it’s a weekend that shouldn’t be missed.

The Barnabas Team organizes dorm worship and study sessions within the dorms. Both of these activities are wonderful ways to meet people in your dorm, and definitely worth looking into. Cultural Discerners (CD), Programming Assistants (PA), and Community Partnership Coordinators (CPC) also plan activities within the dorm, and attending their events is a fantastic way to make connections with the other students in the dorm.

Opportunities to meet other students on campus will not be few and far between. If you are an incoming freshman, Labor Day trips are a marvelous way to mingle with other students in your grade. The trips range from Craig's Cruisers to river tubing and Michigan Adventure. With some of these trips cost ten or fifteen dollars, they are a perfect way to have a great time and meet new people.

Fast approaching is Chaos Day, a riot of face paint, screaming, and intense amount of dorm pride. While standing on the sidelines and cheering on the other competitors in your dorm is fun, participating in the activities is the best way to really take advantage of the event.

Buck Fridays are another popular on-campus event where you can unwind and meet new people. Every Friday from Sept. 7 until Oct. 19, there will be an event either on or near campus snacking at its best. For more information, you can visit their Facebook page “Buck Friday” or www.buckfridays.com.

At the end of the day, the opportunities to meet people and develop relationships with people on your floor, in your dorm, and campus wide are there — it’s all about what activities you choose to participate in, when you choose to go and how excited you are to be meet people and create those relationships. The activities are already planned, carefully thought out, so that you can meet people and have an awesome time — all you need to do is attend.

Eating B-Quiv in the Fish House with Sufjan Stevens

Confused by all the jargon floating around Calvin? Our handy glossary illuminates tricky terms that was called the Covenant Fine Arts Center, but you were wrong. That’s the CFCAF. (As an aside, you’ll have even more fun if you pronounce such names phono-etically. Say ‘cafack’ out loud. You will enjoy yourself. That’s a promise.)

Airband/Dance Guild/
Rangela

The three school-sponsored, student organization performance extravaganzas of the year. Two happen once (Airband in February and Rangela in the spring), one happens twice (since Guild in fall and spring). One encourages diversity (Rangela); one was once underdog (Airband) and one is produced by the largest student organization on campus (Essence Guild). It can be argued that one is about as entertaining as an onion, but that argument would be incorrect, as one is occasion-ally atrocious and two are slickly, expertly produced. We will leave you to determine which is which.

B-Quiv Short for breakfast equivalent. So you’ve got that 21-meal plan and you never drag yourself out of bed for breakfast, huh? There’s no need to waste those meals. Check out Johnny’s around 8-10 p.m. on weeknights and you’ll discover a smorgasbord of breakfast foods for the taking. Swipe your student ID and it counts as a meal used. Late night snacking at its best.

Calvin Crossing/The Tube

These are just two of the terms used to describe the walkway that takes you across the East Beltline to the newfuncing. There’s wireless and season-appropriate temperature regulation for studying and PDA purposes.

Calvin Walk

A stroll about campus with your favorite sweetheart on long-time love. One popular des-ination is the seminary (sem) pond, equipped with nearly se-cluded benches for obvious pur-poses. It is highly possible that a lucky lady may get pearlized during one of these walks (see: pearlring), but mostly, it’s a good excuse to kiss for a while.

Calvin Lock

Campus rules state that a male and female must keep the door open when in a dorm room to-gether. Many choose to flip the lock on the door and then close it, ensuring that the door is open the smallest crack possible. This is it’s equivalent of a sock on the door handle. Do not enter a Calvin locked room without knocking and waiting at least 30 seconds. Campus Safety Building secu-rity and parking lot monitoring squad. They can be summoned by phone or by way of blue safety poles randomly placed around campus. They’ll give you a ride to or from your car or other deserted places around campus late at night, and can open locked build-ings if you’ve got a valid reason.

Canadian Thanksgiving

Calvin hosts a number of Canadian students, who are equally loved and mocked. One benefit they bring is the addition of this holiday, celebrated in October and accompanied by a fancy meal in the dining halls.

Chow Day

Remember Field Day? Here’s your equivalent. It’s a classic dorm vs. dorm day of conflict. Water balloons, relay races, cult-like face painting and photo op-portunities are involved, as are second-year students and dorm leadership waking you up when you’d rather sleep (it’s a Saturday, those jerks), and perhaps an ani-mal sacrifice or two if you’re really lucky.

Cl

The Community John. Each floor has one. Simply put, it’s where you poop. Use it or your suite will smell bad and your roommate will be angry, and you really don’t want that.

Hello, new students, and welcome to Calvin. My name is Richard Chimes, and I am your friendly neighborhood Chimes mascot.

Because it’s traditional for me to write an annual welcome note to new students, I’ve emerged from the dark, dank depths of the Chimes archives in order to write this Quest issue particularly for you: New Calvin students.

First, a little bit about Chimes. Richard, have been here for 31 years now, but that’s not even half as long as the paper that I exist. In fact, if you’re an astute reader, you’ve noticed by now that 31 being the official student newspaper of Calvin College since 1987. In 1907, Theodore Roosevelt was president of the United States. Mark Twain was busy working on “A Horse’s Tale.” Franz Ferdinand had more than seven years left to go as Archduke of Austria-Este. William Spoelhof—named D.H. Muyskens delivered the first pamphlet-sized copy of a publication called Chimes.

Over the course of the year, you will see all sorts of stuff in the pages of this newspaper. While bringing you quality news — both on campus and beyond — doesn’t stop there, either. An important part of Chimes’ mission is to provide the student body — with a place where you can voice your opinions and share your thoughts. (For the record, if something in the paper offends you, don’t just sit there and stew over it. Write about it!) Consequently, it should come as no surprise that Chimes isn’t just newspaper. First and foremost, Chimes is people. It’s a group of college kids, all in their late teens and early twenties, dedicated to Calvin College, our community and each other. It’s a place where for over a century. And somehow, despite all the late nights, sketchy furniture and junk food binges, it’s still here.

That kind of dedication, and that type of person, doesn’t just emerge from nowhere. Much like a cigarette company (but in a far less evil way), Chimes always needs new people, because the people who are already here don’t get to stay for very long. Our staff is made up of a healthy mix of seniors, freshmen and everyone in between. And we definitely have a place for you amongst the jumble of old papers and the piles of racism. So welcome to Calvin, welcome to the Chimes readership. We look forward to seeing you around.

Newroom: (616) 526-6578

The chapel hosts LOFT every Sunday night. It’s where lots of Dutch kids play bingo while discerning worldviews.

The space between the girl’s wing and guy’s wing is the bathroom. So named because it is V-shaped.

Worldview

The way you view the world, a rather self-explanatory term. Often used here in combination with “Christian.”

Dutch Bingo

Dutch people are also all related. Playing Dutch Bingo involves naming all of your relatives and close friends until you hit upon one who both you and your conversation partner know. If you are not actually from a Dutch family, naming members of your CRC church is another.

Creation/Fall/Redemption (CFR) This is something you will hear more and more as the year progresses, mostly during the month of January. Being the basis of the Christian message, it is fairly self-explanatory. Your DCM instructor will disagree (see: Developing a Christian Mind).

Developing a Christian Mind

For short, this course is a mandatory orientation extension that takes up the entire month of January. Have fun. (Note: you can put this off, but it feels a silly to take a class largely populated by freshmen as an itching graduate senior, wouldn’t you agree?)

DTR (Define the Relationship)

A good excuse to watch/listen to/read pretty much anything. (see: Developing a Christian Mind).

Dialogue

Calvin’s publication, print and/or released online four times a semester. The only publication on campus read by fewer than Chimes (and that’s saying something).

Discernment

A good excuse to watch/listen to/read pretty much anything you want for the purpose of being critically shaped. There is an extension of dorm leadership that exists to encourage such activity: The Cultural Discerners, or CDs for short. Led by the legendary Ken Heffner, they have better taste than you. Seriously.

Dutch

Students at Calvin are Dutch. Dutch people are tall, have blonde hair and blue eyes, are painfully cheap (ever heard of “going Dutch” on a date?), and are known for their strong work ethic. Their last names start with Van and end with –ma.

Fish House

Decent coffee at fair prices served by art majors who think they like better music than you. Sometimes they do, but when they’re playing Maroon 5, they don’t.

Grilled Cheese Wednesday

There are grilled cheese sandwiches on Wednesdays without fail. “Nuff said, because who doesn’t love a grilled cheese? Foodies will want to head to Upper House. They have better taste than you. Seriously.

Gourmet Ginza

A sarcastically loving name bestowed upon Knollcrest Dining Hall, frequented by Calvin’s northern dorm dwellers. Those who eat at Commons on the south side most often think Knollcrest serves inferior food, and vice versa.

Hog Coffee

Caffeine fix: Grand Rapids abundant with coffee

BY COLLEEN KEELH A&E Editor

With the start of school comes the start of homework and all the chaos it brings. The question of where to study becomes a prominent issue. Many students reading piles upon piles of daunting height. Old studying spots such as the library, Johansen Hall, and Hekman all seem to bequest the inescapable horrors of homework; consequently, the campus just seems impossible.

GR-usaule offers variety in size and style of congregations

BY ALLISON SCHEPERS A&E Editor

It is not easy adjusting to the college lifestyle. New school. New home. New responsibilities. The decisions made regarding these new challenges, among others, are extraordinarily formatative. Possibly the last thing a new student wants to add to their plate is the challenge of choosing a church.

However, it is one of the most important.

Perhaps you have gone to the same church all your life. Maybe you had a distinct church-hopping for years. Maybe you don’t have a church family. This may be the first thing you start to ask about a church based on your own individual preferences, and not those of your parents. Upon entering Calvin, the opportunity to find a church that matches your unique set of qualities is a猫咪 key to one’s continued spiritual growth as well as overall adjustment to this new stage.

Fortunately, Grand Rapids is the veritable Jerusalem of the Midwest (fondly called “G-Rusalem” by some). In addition to 37 CRC churches, Grand Rapids houses places of worship for many of other denominations. One can hardly go a single block downtown without passing a church.

Students just starting out a church nearby Calvin may sound appealing. There are numerous churches within walking distance. Church of the Servant is a mid-to-large sized place of worship only a 15-minute walk east on Burton. The services at Church of the Servant are very liturgical and feel very churchily worship. Morning services are held at 8:30 and 11:00 a.m.

Across the street from Church of the Servant is First Church of the Nazarene (10:30). First E-Free is a small, passionate ministry with a family feel.

The Grace Church Calvin students are held in our own town. Woodlawn CRC (9:30) is a mid-sized church with a traditional feel.

One of the largest churches in the Grand Rapids area is Mars Hill Bible Church (9:00 and 11:00). Known across the country for its emergent theology, it plays host to a variety of church, proportions, and most of all, for influential pastor/author/Key Rob Bell. Bell recently moved to California to pursue other ministry, but Mars Hill enjoys spiritual leader Kent Dobson is soon to replace Dobson. Mars Hill has over 10,000 people attend one of Mars Hill’s services to hear contemporary music and thought provoking messages.

Ada Bible Church (9:15 and 11:00) is a non-denominational church with over 6,000 members and three campuses. Ada offers a contemporary and informal worship style with dynamic preaching.

One of the most architecturally prominent churches in town is LaGrave Avenue CRC (8:45 and 11:00). Over 1,500 members attend LaGrave each Sunday to experience a church with a traditional feel, as well as a few house specialty coffee bars have a friendly and cozy feel. Kava House is a uniquely modern and ample windows give this coffee shop a uniquely modern and cozy feel. This place is perfect for students looking for some late latte from 10 a.m. to 10 pm. This is a place for coffee snobs — great quality coffee, but not for the novice drinker.

The Sparrows Coffee Tea and Newsstand is a morning and afternoon study hub, and with a carrot and cupcake you can’t go wrong.
